Welcome

The past several years have brought record numbers of visitors and new residents to our community. This inevitably brings change, which unsettles some, yet invigorates others. However, since the founding of Currituck County in 1668, our community has always changed and evolved, moving toward the future. What we strive to find in these times of growth is a balance between preserving our heritage and looking toward the future.

I personally am glad many are discovering our county and surrounding community, either to visit or as a place to live. What I think draws them to the area is our ingrained sense of community, unrivaled natural beauty, and friendly citizens.

I hope in reading Currituck & Northern Outer Banks magazine you will find something new about this great place, whether you are a long time resident, someone who has recently moved here, or someone visiting us for a few days. Come and enjoy all that is great about our area!

Historic Whalehead Club facing the Currituck Sound

Currituck has its own stately Historic Courthouse and Jail. It's on the National Register of Historic Places, and for good reason: both sites were originally constructed in the 1700's and rebuilt in the 1800's. The Historic Jarvisburg Colored School makes that list, too. After an extensive restoration, the school operates as a museum with thoughtful exhibits that reveal an underrepresented and important part of North Carolina history.

Across the county line, history enthusiasts won't want to miss the museums and historical sites that tell stories from our region's past. On the mainland, the Camden County Heritage Museum offers tours of their early 20th century jailhouse and exhibits on local history. From the cry of soldiers at the Battle of South Mills to the secrets of freedom seekers in the Great Dismal Swamp, the museum illustrates these varied stories. Explore the county's heritage through artifacts and miniature replicas or take the Historic jail tour. Knowledgeable docents bring these stories to life.

If you like your history with a healthy dose of the great outdoors, head for Corolla on the Currituck Outer Banks. Within just a few miles of one another, Historic Corolla Village boasts the Whalehead Club, the Currituck Beach Lighthouse, and the Wild Horse Museum, in addition to historic homes and a 19th century schoolhouse. Visitors can explore much of the Village on foot. Climb the lighthouse for expansive views of the Currituck Sound, and then stroll the charming grounds of the Whalehead Club. Or, see how people in Corolla have interacted with their maritime environment at the nearby Outer Banks Center for Wildlife Education.

The Currituck area is also a prime spot for coastal sightseeing. In addition to its beautiful historic sites, Corolla is known for picture perfect beaches and idyllic soundfront spaces. Lucky observers might see some of the town's famous wild horses taking in the scenery, too. These Spanish Mustangs have roamed the Northern Outer Banks for more than 500 years! If you'd rather not leave a sighting to chance, book one of the area's popular horse tours with a local company. Just remember to give our wild neighbors their space – at least 50 feet – and resist the temptation to feed them. Even more wildlife abound on remote Carova and Knotts Island. Take the ferry over from mainland Currituck for bird watching at the adjacent Mackey Island National Wildlife Refuge: geese, ducks, ospreys, falcons, and even bald eagles are frequently spotted along its Great Marsh Trail.

In Camden, the Dismal Swamp State Park welcomes visitors to its unique ecosystem. George Washington would be amazed at the progress made since his first venture in taming the swamp. Today, paths made by loggers are being used to provide a glimpse of the Dismal's valuable secrets. The park offers interactive exhibits, a half-mile boardwalk, 20 miles of trails, and numerous Ranger-led programs. Learn how freedom seekers sought refuge in the swamp. Canoe and kayak rentals offer the chance to paddle the historic Dismal Swamp Canal. Birding, biking, hiking, paddling, and photography are all great activities at the swamp!

Currituck's Rural Center is also great for kayaking or canoeing on the Currituck Sound. The 105-acre site is dog-friendly and features two stocked ponds for fishing. For adventures on wheels, check out the county's skate park. It offers 7,000 square feet of concrete engineered for skateboarding and is just around the corner from the Currituck Community Center, home to the YMCA, Senior Center, and Cooperative Extension office.

Faster. Higher. Crazier. Explore on a whole new level with H2OBX Waterpark or Kitty Hawk Kites. The rides and attractions at H2OBX Waterpark are built for thrill seekers of all ages. Keep things relaxed with a spin down the park's lazy river, or brave the OBX-themed slides for killer views and serious splashdowns. With deals for locals and visitors alike, H2OBX has quickly become an Outer Banks favorite. Just up the highway, Kitty Hawk Kites offers hang gliding and other extreme experiences from locations up and down the Carolina coast. Their hang gliding school is the largest in the world! Strap into a tandem flier for bird's eye views of the beach, or take a dune hang gliding lesson at the famous Jockey's Ridge. Even kids can get in on the high-flying fun with lessons tailored to their abilities.

Along with a day of sightseeing, museum-hopping, or adventuring, don't forget to indulge in some of North Carolina's best cooking. From seafood markets to crab shacks and waterfront restaurants, coastal cuisine is always on the menu. But, there's plenty around Currituck to satisfy landlubbers, too. For breakfast, swing by Corolla's Duck Donuts for unique offerings like the OBX Donut Breakfast Sandwich or a donut ice cream sundae. If you're a fan of Dunkin Donuts, you can also get your fix of pastries, coffee, and breakfast sandwiches at their Corolla location. Back on the mainland, LJ Beaners is keeping Currituck supplied with creative sweets, coffee, and great lunch options from their Moyock bakery. Order ahead through their website or settle into their welcoming café for a treat. When it's time for dinner, pizza is popular at the beach, too. Try Corolla Pizza & Deli for Stromboli, subs, or huge, satisfying slices. They've been slicing it up since 1989 and provide free delivery for parts of the Northern Outer Banks. Order in, grab a bottle of wine from Sanctuary Vineyards, and enjoy!

No matter where you live or what you're in the mood for, you can find it in and around Currituck.

The Memory KEEPER

written by Josh Bass

photography from Barbara Pardue Collection

Roots run deep in the grains of sand on the Outer Banks.
Such is the case with family history on these remote beaches as well.

Until the advent of the automobile and roads were paved, these long stretches of sand were isolated and cut off from mainland North Carolina. The beach's unfertile soil could only support small numbers of people with a fiercely independent spirit.

One descendant of an ancient Northern Outer Banks clan, Barbara Pardue, traces her ancestors back to the early 1700's on the Outer Banks. She is one of the heirs to a property locally known as the Maggie White Estate, a stretch of sand nearly 500 acres large. The land was granted to her family by King George II in 1742. To know Barbara is to know those early settlers. She is self-reliant, boisterous, fun, and outgoing, with a wonderful wit. This is often the kind of person locally known as someone with "a big personality" and maybe just a little bit wild.

Through four generations, Barbara's family has photographed the people, places, and events of the northern beaches. They have done so and preserved these with an eye towards educating future generations about a place and a way of life that no longer exists. Barbara's grandmother, Lucy White Beasley, started taking photographs around Corolla, Carova, and in Swan Beach in the 1930's. Time and modern development have erased many of the buildings from the landscape. Some of the only memories of these places and people remain in this family photo collection.

Barbara regularly shares her photos on social media accounts dedicated to the history of the area, especially her Facebook page, Northern Outer Banks History. "So many people today forget what actually happened. We have to remind them of the truth," says Barbara. She wants to ensure the history of this place is not forgotten but valued and shared accurately. "I think you need to know history and know your past, because it is your heritage. You need to know where you came from to understand yourself and the traits you might have inherited. You need to pass history along to generations who come later," she explains.

Barbara believes all history must be told honestly and accurately, even when it might not be the most flattering story. One such case is the mysterious death of Barbara's great-grandfather, Leon White. Leon was found shot in his bed, and his wife Maggie, Barbara's great-grandmother, stood trial for murder, making headlines throughout the nation. Maggie first claimed that her husband's gunshot was the result of suicide. However, no gun was located. Later Maggie claimed there had been a prowler around the house. Maggie was eventually acquitted due to lack of evidence. However, questions remained around this mysterious death. Interestingly, years later a gun was found buried in the family garden patch. Many would try to hide such a colorful family story, but not Barbara. She will tell you this story openly, honestly, and with just a hint of mischief glinting in her eyes.

To travel around the four-wheel drive area with her is to go on an adventure with reckless abandon. She thinks nothing of diving into woods to show the curious the marker that was erected in the 1820's to mark the boundary between Virginia and North Carolina, even if it means fending off wild boar, ticks, chiggers, and snakes.

Barbara thinks nothing of these hazards that would make many an urban dweller a bit squeamish. These adventures are often research projects on local history. Accuracy means she often has to investigate an area herself. "Before the stories here disappear, we have to pass this along to the younger generations. But we have to make sure what we say is right," says Barbara.

Land of the AUTO ENTHUSIAST

written by Mary B. Simmons

Currituck has been known as The Land of the Wild Goose since the time of the Native Algonquins; it is a land whose bountiful wildfowl have been sought after for generations of hunters and wildfowl viewing enthusiasts.

Look through the lens of a different enthusiast, the auto enthusiast, the classic car aficionado, the gearhead, and you will see Currituck has an extensive history of reverence and enthusiasm for the automobile.

Drive south just past the state line and pull into the new Tractor Supply in Moyock. If you look carefully near the entrance, you will see a stately pole covered in vines, with a tilting old-school metal streetlamp on the top. That lamp is the last vestige of the Dog Track Raceway, a short track that started in the dirt and ended on the asphalt. Dog Track Raceway hosted seven Nascar Grand National races from 1962 to 1966, fielding the great names in Nascar history...Ned Jarrett, David Pearson, Wendell Scott, Jimmy Pardue, Richard Petty, and female driver Goldie Parsons. Even now, you can head to one of the many local tracks still in operation in Southeastern Virginia and Eastern North Carolina, check the night's rosters, and you'll find Currituck drivers. The need for speed is still strong here.

While traveling through the Moyock area from May to October between 5:00 and 8:00pm every other Tuesday, you will see a variety of the area's coolest cars converging at the Classic Car Cruise In to benefit the Currituck County Professional Fire Fighters & EMS Association Local 4633. These Cruise Ins are co-sponsored by Moyock Pizza Kitchen, WAO Garage, and Graham's Collision Center.

In early April experience the Annual Cruise In and Car Show to benefit both J. P. Knapp Early College P. E. program and Currituck County Sheriff's Office Summer Camp. You can catch a stunning variety of cars, from classic muscle to high-performance. The rally begins at 9:15 with the cars cruising to Diggers Dungeon, beside the monster truck headquarters of Grave Digger, a mecca for monster truck fans everywhere!

Currituck County High School automotive technology teacher Mark Wootton leads students in working on all types of vehicles including classic cars and trucks. The showpiece for the school system is used for special events – a 1937 Dodge LaFrance Pumper Truck. With gleaming chrome and polished tires and a seriously loud siren, this masterpiece delights students who work on it as well as car aficionados who are lucky enough to glimpse it. Wootton and his students have also honed their skills by converting a Harley-Davidson motorcycle to biodiesel fuel, gaining a spot on the Speed Channel show American Thunder. Another jewel to come from the CCHS autoshop is a modified classic 1967 Shelby Mustang GT-350 Convertible. Mention the name "Shelby Mustang" to any car collector, and watch their eyes light up! These students completely rewired the car with modern conveniences, including making it a flex-fuel capable car. Several years ago, Wootton and his students also converted two vehicles into electric powered vehicles, earning the shop national recognition.

Local businesses offer a plethora of services, such as oil changes and other repairs. For a part for your vehicle, stop by family owned Old's Auto Supply & Service (NAPA affiliated). East Coast

Auto & Marine Supply Inc./CarQuest in Grandy also offers performance parts and manufactured brands to help keep your car running smoothly for years to come.

If your classic car or daily drive need body work, check out Graham's Collision Center in Moyock. Another must stop shop is WAO Garage in Moyock. Known for their window tinting services, WAO Garage offers AMSOIL, helping auto enthusiasts keep their cars show-ready and running smoothly. WAO Garage provides services such as 3M Ceramic Coating, paint protection film, and vehicle wrap.

Raymond Havemann, Service Writer Manager with Beach Ready Auto, states they work on classic and show cars on a regular basis, having recently rolled out a 1971 Dodge Charger Super Bee. Havemann says it is not unusual to have several on-going projects such as the C-10 Pickup Show Vehicle under repair for its next adventure.

For those who've traveled farther south in Currituck and need service, stop by R&R Garage in Powells Point, owned and operated by Nevin Kenan and Joe Gallo. Drive by and see a variety of vehicles waiting for pickup or ready to work on...1960's era Ford Falcons, 1950's classic cars, mud racers, muscle cars – you name it, they work on it. While they have a passion for classic cars, they are a one-stop shop for all vehicles and can diagnose, repair, and maintain vehicles from any year.

Many antique and classic car enthusiasts will tell you their passion comes from memories of childhood and loved ones from long ago. Currituck County IS the land of the auto enthusiast...come to the Currituck mainland and indulge your love for all things automotive!

A Place to Call HOME

*The Florez family at work designing a home.

Entrepreneurship has been a part of life in Currituck and the Outer Banks region for centuries. For most of the region's history, it was a sparsely populated, isolated area with few job prospects, forcing residents to forge paths of their own to find money-making endeavors. Many were modest, self-sustaining individuals, making their livings from the land and water - fishermen, farmers, and a few shopkeepers - but as time went on and the economy changed, business enterprises were built around the burgeoning tourism industry. Such is the case with Mike Florez, a man who came to the area from Virginia Beach.

While self-resilient entrepreneurship is not unique to the region, the fact that this family has three different businesses, each independently owned, is fairly unique. For the Florez family, it all started in 1988 when Mike Florez came to the Outer Banks to work with his brother, a residential designer. Together they started a business, Florez and Florez, to design residential homes. "I came down here because a pretty day on the Outer Banks is prettier than the prettiest day in Virginia Beach," says Mike Florez. The firm would change and grow, ultimately becoming Florez Design Studios.

In April of 1988, Mike met his future wife, Bobbi, while on the job, where she was working as a real estate agent in Corolla. Bobbi started working at Florez and Florez as an assistant in the late 1990's. With her background in real estate sales, she was a natural at helping the firm sell their stock plans, a tremendous benefit given the firm's volume of business. In 2000, Mike and Bobbi Florez bought the building at the base of the Wright Memorial Bridge in Currituck, which serves as the gateway to Outer Banks beaches. This real estate commercial foothold would prove to be pivotal in providing opportunity years later to other family members. "We had rented and moved and rented and moved and had to redo places every time. We just wanted a place for our business, a place we can call home" explains Mike. "We wanted a location close to where we lived, and, since we get to drive across the bridge and see the sound each morning, it's such a relaxing, beautiful drive," adds Bobbi. Mike's younger brother, Rob, moved to Florida in 2001 to open a second office, which flourished.

Emma Florez, Mike and Bobbi's daughter, launched a venture simply to raise money while she was a student at the College of The Albemarle in 2009. Initially, It's All Good specialized in yard sale finds and quality used furniture. For Emma, this was a way to raise money for an upcoming trip to Greece, although she had no idea it would evolve into a business. "I just went around to yard sales and started giving out my card," Emma explains. In this way, she accumulated lots of items to sell. Over time it became more of an antique shop and a place with eclectic designs, specializing in artistically painted furniture. Emma's passions eventually changed, and she went back to school in 2017 to obtain a degree in interior design. She planned to leave the area once completed, but the 2020 Covid-19 epidemic drew her back to launch Florez Interiors, an interior design firm. Many of the products from the shop remained, and it was fortunate that her parents had chosen not to rent the premises, allowing her a chance to start an entirely new endeavor. While the purchase of a building in 2000 may not have seemed like an opportunity to offer their children a head start in business, it certainly was for Emma.

Matt Florez, the Florez's son, had a different path to starting his own business. He and his wife, Traci, founded and own Angel Advanced Technologies, which performs electrical, audio video, security, and IT technological work on residential homes as well as commercial properties throughout the Outer Banks. "I grew up seeing the advantages of owning a business, and that appealed to me when I started looking at how to achieve financial flexibility and flexibility with my time. I saw that as an advantage because I had grown up in it," says Matt. According to his father, "Matt literally cut his teeth on job site lumber," growing up in visiting construction sites. When Matt brought his bride home to the Outer Banks, Traci worked a few jobs at other businesses before joining the family network of businesses. Her mother-in-law, Bobbi, advised she quit her job and work for them so she could be with her babies. Matt says that one of the advantages of working in the same industry as his parents is that often, when he is working on a new construction site, it is a house plan that his parents have designed. Because he understands their thought process so well, he can readily anticipate where things are meant to go.

While each business is its own entity, because they all work around trades based in real estate, they frequently collaborate. "To be a small business owner you have to have grit. No one is going to do it for you. You have to work your tail off. 5:00 a.m. mornings are common," shares Bobbi.

Interestingly, a generation or two ago, most of the Florez forefathers were farmers, fisherman, and small builders, the very kinds of people who were the initial settlers of the Outer Banks region. It is fitting that their offspring work in the booming real estate trades that have propelled the Outer Banks toward today's vital economy. The Florez family has followed the path of so many Outer Banks families who have moved out of the labor intensive work of farming and fishing to find prosperity in the Outer Banks' boon.

However, success isn't everything for the Florez family. Mike put it succinctly in what it means to truly have a family business when he says, "it's quite extraordinary to be in the office at 6:00 a.m. and have coffee with my son whose office is next door, then have lunch with my daughter, and spend most of the day with my wife whose office is at the other end of the building." "My office is at the other end of the building with good reason,"

Mike and Bobbi Florez

A Florez residential design in process

adds Bobbi with a laugh.

They all remarked that when other family members, such as Bobbi's father, stop in to visit, they all can take a moment and spend some time with well-loved family members, something many who don't own their own business don't get the chance to enjoy.

"The way our community has received all of us and recommends us is a special experience, and that people value us, we hold that dearly," says Matt. Bobbi adds, "if you want to know the people you are doing business with, here we are,

come meet us."

While designing floor plans, electrifying homes, and furnishing the interiors of houses to make loving homes for others, what they have really built is a business where their family can be together. They have not just built three businesses. They have truly built a family who works together in the same location, and, in this way, they have built what Mike said he wanted when he purchased their building in 2000: they have built a place to call home.

A Strong Foundation For Success

written by Mary B. Simmons

Currituck is known and loved for many resources it offers residents and tourists...hunting and fishing, pristine beaches, wild horses, stunning views of the Currituck and Albemarle Sounds, a rural atmosphere even among unprecedented growth and opportunity. Yet, Currituck offers another resource that is critical to the future growth of the county: an innovative school system with an outstanding staff meeting the needs of over 4000 students daily, from PK (pre-kindergarten) through Grade 12.

Our school system is an invaluable resource for students, employing the most qualified staff members to guide our county students into becoming life-long learners and preparing them for success in their future. The ten schools in the county offer students dedicated and caring staff members while each school has its own unique personality. Step into our schools: from Knotts Island Elementary School or J. P. Knapp Early College, housed in historic buildings funded heartily years ago by New York publishing giant and Ducks Unlimited founder, Joseph Palmer Knapp, to Central Elementary School, Griggs Elementary School, and Moyock Elementary School, schools that blend historic buildings with new additions, and then step into Currituck County High School, Currituck Middle School, Moyock Middle School, and Jarvisburg and Shawboro Elementary Schools, each more modern buildings but sharing the same community oriented focus – your students matter here. They are part of our community.

Currituck County Schools provide students a strong educational foundation beginning with our very youngest children...our preschool and elementary school children. Preschool and our early grades provide our students the educational foundations to succeed at the middle and high school levels, not only by teaching the basics such as reading, writing, mathematics, and study habits, but also by focusing on the physical and mental needs of each child, fulfilled by play and hands on activities with small group experiences. Preschool and elementary school staff are highly qualified, and highly trained – many of them have worked for and earned their National Board Certifications. They are themselves life-long learners and participate in staff development activities to hone their skills. Currituck teachers braved a new frontier when COVID forced them to go fully digital. They met the challenge of offering virtual learning experiences for their students while maintaining connection with each young student through computer and phone interaction. Currituck County teachers now use digital learning and face-to-face instruction in blended learning situations to provide unique opportunities for each student.

Outstanding Program Focus: The First Building Block

For our very youngest students, Currituck County Schools offer a NC Pre-K Program (previously More at Four), which takes a play-based approach to learning. These teachers and assistants build on a child's natural curiosity to provide student-centered instruction. Walk into one of these classrooms and see children engaged in play and fun learning activities. The dedicated NC Pre-K staff meet students at their individual levels and nurture whole-child development. NC Pre-K classrooms are housed at Central and Griggs Elementary Schools.

Elementary School Excitement

Catch some of the wonder and excitement for school and learning by walking through the doors of one of our elementary schools. Feel the excitement, whether you take the ferry to visit Knotts Island Elementary School, or drive to our southernmost school, Jarvisburg Elementary School, or visit any of our other fine elementary schools, Moyock, Central, and Shawboro, and you will feel the joy when you walk through the doors.

At Knotts Island Elementary School experience small school life with Christmas plays, school-wide reading challenges, author visits, and family coding nights. Visit Moyock Elementary School, and you could experience Glow Runs, Mad Science Assemblies, Balloons Over Broadway parades, and service projects. Travel south to Shawboro Elementary School, and find Fun Runs, Santa and his elves on the roof, Food Drives for the community, and Veteran's Day programs. A little farther south at Central Elementary School, witness book character parades, reading festivals, and 5K Run & Walks. Stop by Griggs Elementary School to cheer students on as they participate in a 5K Color Run, pumpkin decorating contests, and Superheroes Spirit days. Farther south at Jarvisburg Elementary School see the excitement as students participate in scavenger hunts, STEM activities, Mission Impossibles, and Candy Cane Coding.

Beyond the Foundation: Middle and High Schools Offer Diverse Programming

From athletics to clubs, from Career and Technical offerings to scholarly academics and unique and new course offerings, Currituck County middle schools and high schools provide learning, enrichment, and fun that build on the firm foundation of the earlier grades. Students at Currituck Middle School and Moyock Middle School get their first taste of school sports teams, chorus and band, Beta Clubs, FFA, and interest-based clubs. They get a menu of coursework in Career and Technical Courses or CTE Career Cafe

Moments, and some students even begin high school coursework in middle school. Students at J.P. Knapp Early College not only pursue dual enrollment with the College of The Albemarle (COA), but participate in many club activities, such as Chess Club, Math Club, and Fine Arts Club while also raising donations for our local animal shelter. What's cooking at Currituck County High School? Club offerings and school sports are strong and exciting! The CCHS Beta Club had a donation drive for the animal shelter. Students experienced a thrilling Law Enforcement Symposium, the annual Chorus Winter Concert, when the band and chorus again thrilled the audience, and the outstanding theater program. CCHS courses include exciting offerings such as COA Dual Enrollment, expanded CTE offerings, Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps (AFROTC), English 4 with a foods focus, and EMT and Fire CTE courses, along with a buffet of other course offerings to provide Currituck County students with exceptional choices.

Additional access to medical care is available in other cities of southeast Hampton Roads (Virginia) as well as Greenville, NC.

In addition to the services offered at the nearby hospitals, there are medical offices throughout the county. In the northern end of the Currituck mainland there is Currituck Internal Medicine & Family Practice as well as Sentara Family & Internal Medicine Physicians. On the beach you will find Outer Banks Family Medicine – Kitty Hawk. For specialized service there is TotalCare for Women located in Moyock as well as Peaceful Waters Counseling and Wellness Center.
